TO THE HIGH HEAVENS

THE FRAGMENTS OF FLOOD ROCK, IN HELL GATE, ASCENDED.

The Greatest Explosion in the History of the Country—Thousands View the Spectacle—A Flood of Smoke to New York Harbor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The most intense excitement existed in the city Saturday morning on account of the great explosion at Hell Gate, whereby Flood Rock was removed. Thousands of people gathered on the river banks, and many boats were sent out to witness the spectacle. The explosion was heard as far as New York City, and the smoke was visible from the harbor.

The explosion took place at 11:15 the vibration being felt in New York and Brooklyn. It is estimated that the process of removing the rock was completed in about five minutes. The rock was a large, irregular mass of granite, and its removal was a great feat of engineering.

The beautiful weather and the clearness of the atmosphere brought the distant rock within the vision of thousands of people at different points for a mile around. There were perceptible excitement among the masses of the great public institutions at intervals along the New York shore to keep their eyes fixed on the scene.

A few minutes before 11 o'clock a small band of about 100 men stood on a small battery, in a little temporary building on the left bank of the river, near the Hell Gate Light. They were waiting for the explosion.

At 11:12 precisely one of the party fired the first shot of the battery. Instantly 13,280 dynamite cartridges exploded, sending out great waves of fire and smoke. The explosion was heard as far as New York City, and the smoke was visible from the harbor.

All New York, from Harlem to the Battery, and from the East River to the Hudson, were filled with people. The explosion was a great success, and the rock was removed without any loss of life or property.

The current of electricity lay down the length of the battery, and a single wire carried the current to the dynamite. The explosion was a great success, and the rock was removed without any loss of life or property.

Mary Newton, daughter of Gen. Newton, aged 11 years, closed the key which sent the current through the battery. She was a brave girl, and she did her duty without any hesitation.

HOADLEY AND FORAKER.

Prohibition, the Bloody Shirt and Anti-Prohibition the Stakes in Buckeye.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 10.—As early as 6:30 tonight an immense crowd of people gathered in front of Music hall.

The doors were thrown open at 7 o'clock, and there was a rush for the front seats, and in less than ten minutes the building was comfortably filled with an enthusiastic audience, drawn thither to listen to the joint debate between Governor Hoadley and Judge Foraker, candidates for governor of Ohio.

Many ladies occupied seats in the dress circle, which had been reserved for their use. By 7 o'clock the hall was packed to the utmost capacity.

The aisles, doors and windows were filled and hundreds of people were turned away unable to find even standing room. Two magnificent floral designs were brought to the front of the stage and placed in front of the seat reserved for Judge Foraker.

One of these represented a horse shoe resting on an oval with the words: "Vim, Vigor and Victory" in the center; the other a bouquet of flowers across which the republican candidate's name was displayed.

At 7:53 o'clock Judge Foraker, the republican candidate for governor, appeared upon the stage, accompanied by Alphonso Taft and Judge Smith. When Judge Foraker was recognized he was greeted with deafening cheers. Five minutes later Governor Hoadley came upon the stage, accompanied by his chairman, William O'Neil, and Otway J. Cosgrove, chairman of the Hamilton county democratic committee.

As Governor Hoadley passed his antagonist, he stopped and shook hands with him, and passed on to his seat on the left of the stage. When Governor Hoadley walked across the stage the applause was uproarious. When he died, Judge Taft stepped to the front and introduced Judge Foraker, who opened the debate by saying:

"I want to commence here tonight by briefly reviewing the discussion at Toledo. At that point Governor Hoadley had the opening and closing of the debate. He discussed the question of personal liberty. He made an argument in defense of his conservative position on the liquor traffic. What led him to suppose the issues joined was the question of prohibition. In answering him I pointed out that no such issue existed outside of his vivid imagination."

Judge Foraker then spoke against license, as it was utterly impracticable under the constitution. He then referred to the last legislature as being corrupt, and produced an array of figures to show that the management of the state prison was incompetent and dishonest in its report. He had something to say about the reforming schools and cited Governor Hoadley's dispatches at Toledo when the matter was referred to at that point.

He said that Hoadley admitted some of the charges, denying others, and apologizing for the remainder. The remainder of the time he spent in denouncing the republican party and a sneering allusion to the bloody shirt.

Judge Foraker continued: "Perhaps we have come to the point in Ohio where we recall the recollections of the war. I want to say that in Virginia the canvass is carried on by Fitz-Hugh Lee traveling over the state with a photograph of himself in full Confederate uniform and the saddle and bridle used in Pickett's division on the ever memorable charge at Gettysburg. What we want is that every man should have equal political power, no matter what side he is in. In the state of Georgia one man has four times the political power that a man in Ohio has, and we protest against that."

He closed his speech by saying that "what Governor Hoadley is in favor of he cannot get until the constitution is amended. What we propose can be accomplished."

When Judge Foraker took his seat, there was a tremendous outburst of applause. Hon. William O'Neil then stepped to the front and introduced Governor Hoadley, who said: "My first duty tonight is to correct the mistake made at Toledo, when the telegrapher had me say that Abraham Lincoln died a Democrat. My intention was to say that William H. Seward died a Democrat. My second duty is to place on record my back my old friend Alphonso Taft, who is a Republican and a Steward. He is an open enemy, but a frank friend. The Democrats of Hamilton county will not forget his glowing words at Turner Hall some time ago in favor of a license system. Judge Taft has just returned from a long residence with a sober nation, who use wine and beer as a part of their daily food. We have to have a deeper interest in the subject of temperance. In referring to the anxiety of Hendricks and other Democrats to take a look at the books kept by the Republicans for the past twenty-five years, he said: 'There may have only been a deficit of 2 cents, according to Judge Foraker's remarks, that gentleman did not go behind the books and show up the rascality of the star routes, the whisky rings, and the stealings from the Freedman's Savings Bank.'

At this point the speaker was disturbed by a fight on the stage. There was intense excitement and policemen were crowding their way through the dense mass of people from all parts of the house to arrest the offenders. They were finally taken off to the station house.

Governor Hoadley then proceeded and spoke of two schemes on the mount, one at Mount McGregor, by General Grant, and the other at Mount Gilad, by John Sherman. The sermon at Mount McGregor, from the dying, tremendous lips of the great General, counseled in money and good feeling between the sections, while the other was a sermon of hate and bitterness. He continued: "It has been said that the Democrats appear no soldiers to office, but I believe I can safely say I have appointed more soldiers to office than any Republican who ever held the office of Governor." He further detailed the great good accomplished during his administration, and closed by appealing to Judge Foraker to tell the people if he was for or against prohibition.

JUDGE FORAKER THEN CLOSED THE DEBATE

by saying: "If Governor Hoadley referred to William H. Seward as having died a Democrat, he was much mistaken about Seward as of Lincoln. While one Democrat was killing Lincoln, another Democrat was almost killing Seward." He continued his remarks for half an hour, reviewing what already has been gone over.
